Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.,
Operative - 312.

312/Halfner, Mr. Bradley

November 7, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative boarded a train for New Brunswick, N.J.

Upon arrival at New Brunswick, N.J., Operative proceeded to the offices of the International Motor Co., and after conversing with a young man there, was advised to return Wednesday morning.

Operative then left the offices of the International Motor Co., and proceeded to the railroad station and joined Garry Kenny.

While in conversation with Garry Kenny, a young man entered the station and was introduced to Operative by Mr. Kenny. Operative learned that this young fellow's name was Halfner.

Mr. Halfner related to Garry Kenny and Operative how he had been over to the Court House that morning and how he heard how Schneider or some other fellow by that name had found the bodies and telephoned to New Brunswick, and how he (Halfner) was in the Court House that morning with two officers, and that the three of them went up to the Phillips' Farm, and when they got there they met a Dr. Long who wanted somebody to turn the bodies over so that he could look at them.. Halfner remarked how Dr. Long was afraid to touch the bodies, and how Dr. Long said it was a case of suicide. Halfner said that he told Dr. Long that it was not suicide. Halfner said that the Officials down there tried to say that the job had been done in New Brunswick, as they don't want to handle the case and want to throw it on our County, but the Police would not stand for it.

Mr. Halfner then related to Operative how the bodies were lying, and he told Operative that there was a key sticking out of one of Mr. Hall's pockets. Halfner said, "Why didn't they get busy and see where that key belonged?" Halfner said that there were a bunch of letters between Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, and that Dr. Long didn't even pick them up. Halfner said
